Families lose housing for many reasons. A layoff, an injury/illness that results in medical bills, an unexpected death of a family provider, or a raise in rent can leave families living on the streets or in their cars, struggling to put their lives back together. At IHS, The Institute for Human Services, our comprehensive services help each individual in the ohana so that they can collectively contribute to the advancement of family goals.

Just for Kids

Each child is assessed for learning progress and a customized plan to support each keiki's development is created in partnership with parents. Afterschool programs include tutoring, art and extracurricular learning. Our intercession programs include learning experiences, offsite tours, cultural excursions and summer fun. We also help with school supplies, clothes, and work closely with schools to ensure every child accesses the full range of benefits available.

Just for Parents
